

Project Management Services

In today's competitive business environment you need production, process and operational data, where and when you want it, in a format that is appropriate to your role, helping you to make decisions that positively impact your bottom line.

In order to optimise the data that is available to you, and gain the maximum benefit, it may be necessary to modify your processes, your plant, your instrumentation or your IT infrastructure.

You may not have the resources internally and a general contractor may not have the specialist metering skills necessary to make sure your project fulfils its primary goals.

With Emerson's METCO Services unit as your project manager, it is like having your own in-house specialist. We wear your hat, attend meetings with the relevant authorities and represent you at the pipeline technical authority meetings. We understand the fundamentals of measurement uncertainty, hydrocarbon accounting, production reporting and production chemistry, but also have wide experience in instrumentation, automation, measurement, IT and software technology. We are also highly experienced at project management.

METCO has undertaken specialist projects for many of the world's key oil, gas, petrochemical, chemical and power companies. This has been as part of a Total Metering Management Contract and, in other cases, on an individual contract basis. METCO may operate within an existing project team, but have also acted as the project Manager performing turn-key projects. We become part of your business with the same goals and aspirations.

METCO is your:

- Project Manager
- Manager of Regulatory Authority Relationships
- Vendor Assessor
- Vendor Representative/Tester
- Expeditor
- Internal Liaison Officer
